CROSSING the LINE

EXCLUSIVE
INTERVIEW

Martin Clunes plays a Welsh farmer targeted by a gang of drug dealers

NEW DRAMA

Out There

Sunday & Monday, 9pm, ITV1
(box set, ITVX)

Centred around the deadly world of county-lines drug dealing, Martin Clunes' latest hard-hitting drama, Out There, sees him play Welsh farmer Nathan Williams, whose family and business come under threat when his son is targeted by a ruthless gang.

The six-part ITV1 series, shot on location in Wales, opens with widower Nathan keen to expand his farming business, which has been in the family for generations. However, his teenage son, Johnny (Louis Ashbourne Serkis), falls into the wrong crowd when he reconnects with an old friend, Rhys (Gerran Howell), who is now a drug dealer.

As Rhys tricks Johnny into running drugs for him to pay off a debt, Johnny is spotted by local cop PC Jane Crowther (Eiry Thomas), and events quickly take a terrifying and deadly turn...

Here, in an exclusive interview, Clunes, 63, tells us more...

How do Nathan and Johnny become embroiled in the dangerous world of drugs?

Johnny has a crush on a girl at his school and is asked to look after a package for Sadie's older brother Rhys. It's the catalyst for a terrible chain of events. Before long, Nathan's family and entire livelihood is at stake. County-lines crime is a hideous business and viewers will see the terrifying repercussions of it on Nathan's family.

How much did you know about county-lines crime before you started filming?

I did a lot of research, and while this is a work of fiction, it is represented accurately. I was horrified to learn that drug dealers have a scoring method. For example, when you stab someone, it's a badge of honour. In the drama, we see Johnny getting involved with this really nasty character, Kenny, a career criminal, and see how the whole farm is drawn into it.

How would you describe the relationship between Nathan and Johnny?

Nathan's wife Sabine, Johnny's mum, died two years ago and the loss colours everything. Sabine was French and Johnny's sister is now in France with relatives, so it's just Nathan and Johnny at the farm. There is love between them but they're not best buddies. You get a lot of eye-rolling from Johnny when Nathan attempts to speak to him about things like drugs.

This is set on the Welsh borders.

How did you find the Welsh accent? We had a great dialect coach and we were surrounded by a Welsh crew and Welsh actors including Mark Lewis Jones [who plays Nathan's brother Caleb], so that was helpful. The only other time I've had to do a Welsh accent was one scene in [1990s sitcom] Men Behaving Badly, in which I had to pretend to be Welsh to put off somebody moving into the flat. But I don't think that counts!

Martin Clunes as Nathan and Sharon Morgan as Gwen

You have your own farm in Dorset. Did that experience come in useful?

There are quite a few scenes with drones and I knew what I was doing because I use a drone on my own farm. It's very useful for locating missing lambs. When a ewe tucks her lamb in behind the gorse, you can't find them anywhere!

Your wife Philippa is a producer on Out There, and you also worked together on Manhunt and Doc Martin. Do you both bring your work home with you? We're used to it now but, yes, little bits come home with us, mainly the mechanics of it, because we own the production company together. But to be honest, once we're at home, we're more concerned with our animals. They take up most of our headspace. We've got seven horses, a handful of cattle and five dogs. My daughter is studying to be an equine vet nurse.

You have been in so many popular shows. What do fans ask you most when they see you? It's usually, 'Has Doc Martin really finished?' The answer to that is, 'Yes, it has finished and I feel fine about that.' These days, people usually just ask me if they can have a selfie.

The detectives see something special

NEW CRIME DRAMA

High Potential

From Thursday 23 January, Disney+ (first two eps from Thursday 23 January, then weekly)

Kaitlin Olson is a familiar face to fans of raucous sitcom It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia, having played self-centred bartender Dee Reynolds in the cult comedy since 2005. Now, the actor is flexing her dramatic muscles alongside her comedy skills as she stars in quirky Disney+ crime procedural High Potential.

Based on a French series, the 13-parter is set in Los Angeles and follows single mum Morgan Gillory, a colourful, outspoken cleaner with an exceptional IQ, who's recruited by the LAPD Major Crimes unit after she solves a murder while tidying their office.

Here, Olson, 49, tells us more...

What appealed to you about this project? I love that it's something different. Morgan's a fun character and gives me a great opportunity to play emotion, comedy and everything in between.

How does Morgan come to the attention of the LAPD? As a single mom of three working as a cleaner for the police, she's just about making ends meet. One night, she knocks over a bunch of evidence and as she's cleaning it up, she realises they've made a mistake. She crosses off 'Suspect' under one woman's picture on their case board and writes 'Victim'.

What's the reaction to her tinkering? Detective Adam Karadec [Echoes Daniel Sunjata] isn't happy that she tampered with their evidence, but Lieutenant Selena Soto [Scrubs star Judy Reyes] realises Morgan is able to catch tiny clues that they've missed due to her incredibly high IQ, and offers her a job as a consultant.

Why does she agree to the position? One of the reasons – besides the pay cheque – is that she's looking for Roman Siquerra, the father of her teenage daughter Ava. He mysteriously left 15 years ago and she knows that he didn't just walk out on them.

Does Morgan consider her intellect a gift? No, there are real challenges that go along with it – and you will see her struggle. It would be a disservice to this character and anybody who's highly intelligent or neurodivergent to ignore the fact that there's a lot more that comes with it.

Is it tricky to memorise the facts and figures that Morgan reels off? It's like a new language! In the opening episode, she's working out a grocery-store bill that I had nightmares about leading up to filming. I'm used to improvising if I can't remember dialogue, but you can't improvise your way through math. This is the one scene where there was some cheating going on – I had tiny Post-it notes hidden on the ham!

Could her working relationship with Detective Karadec become romantic? You don't know if they hate each other, could have a romance or are just two people learning to trust each other. I will let you draw your own conclusions. I would love to do another season because it's a ripe landscape with so much more to discover.

It's Always Sunny returns with its 17th season later this year. What does it mean to you? It's once in a lifetime and life-changing. I met my husband [Rob McElhenney] on Sunny and now we're married with two beautiful little boys. We're such a family on the show, too. Danny DeVito [who stars as Olson's on-screen legal father, Frank] is so important to me and all of the cast. I don't know how I got so lucky.

Ella Maisy Purvis as Patience

DEAD MAN WALKING

Can Patience solve the case of a disappearing corpse?

LAST ONE CRIME DRAMA

Patience

Wednesday & Thursday, 9pm, C4

With her unique ability to untangle tricky cases, autistic police archivist Patience Evans has solved some baffling crimes in York while under the mentorship of DI Bea Metcalf. But there are two more cases that require her close inspection before the drama bows out this week.

In Wednesday's episode, Patience (Ella Maisy Purvis) is personally pulled into an investigation after her friend and autistic-support-group leader Billy (Connor Curren) discovers his brother is dead.

But when the body vanishes from the mortuary slab, should the team be on the hunt for a bodysnatcher or did the 'corpse' simply get up and walk away?

'Patience has a special relationship with Billy; they're each other's comfort people,' says Purvis, 21, who is among several neurodivergent actors in the cast. 'They understand each other's needs and boundaries, and they can communicate with each other with just a look or a nod.

'Patience is also very logical and somewhat of a nosy parker, so she can't help but point out what's obvious to her. We see this intriguing case through her eyes, which makes it even more heartfelt.'

UNIQUE VIEWPOINT

In the series finale on Thursday, Bea (Laura Fraser) needs Patience's expertise more than ever during an investigation into a suspected anthrax fatality on a bus. Can she connect the dots?

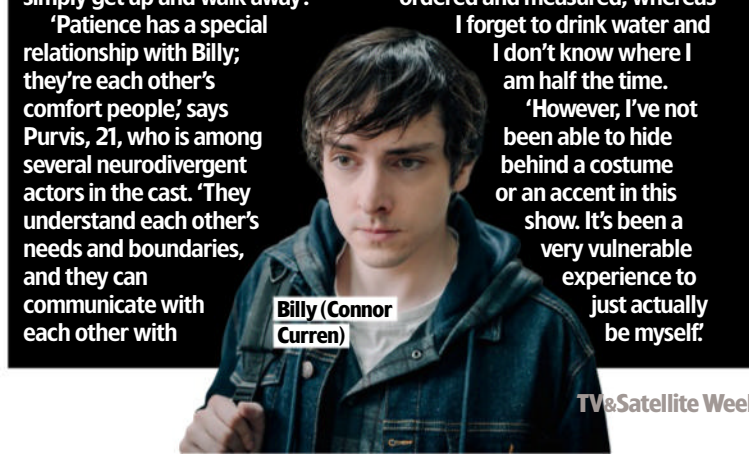

'We see how Patience's mind works, and we're ultimately given a neurodivergent point of view, which is quite unique,' says Purvis, who collaborated with writers to produce a 'truthful' representation of neurodivergence.

'It's interesting because I'm not a lot like Patience, really. She's very ordered and measured, whereas

I forget to drink water and I don't know where I am half the time.

'However, I've not been able to hide behind a costume or an accent in this show. It's been a very vulnerable experience to just actually be myself.'

NEW ENTERTAINMENT

Gladiators

Saturday, 5.50pm, BBC1

When Gladiators returned to our screens, BBC1's revival of the epic 1990s series was one of the most-watched shows of 2024 with nearly 10 million viewers tuning in for the first episode.

Now, it's back with more fit and eager contenders ready to take on the elite team of athletes and bodybuilders in a series of thrilling bouts and battles such as Duel, Powerball and The Edge.

Bradley and Barney Walsh once again host proceedings at Sheffield Arena, while the 16 Gladiators from the first series are returning, along with Mark Clattenburg and his team of referees. Plus, there are two new games – Unleash, which involves a cat-and-mouse chase on an assault course, and Atlaspheres, in which contenders and Gladiators do battle in giant metal balls.

TV&Satellite Week caught up with Jade Packer, 26, and Alex Gray, 33, AKA Electro and Apollo, to find out more...

Did you expect the return of Gladiators to be such a hit?

Electro We always hoped so, and the reception that the show got was fantastic – we were super-pleased. It was great to reach out to so many viewers, especially kids, and showcase sport. The show is a good platform for that.

The show made stars of all the Gladiators virtually overnight. Do you get recognised wherever you go now?

Apollo It's an amazing thing to get noticed and to be asked to pose for photos. Whether we're on a train or at the supermarket, it happens all the time. The best thing is that everyone we meet loves the show and is so supportive of it. The feedback from kids and families has been amazing.

Gladiators* has been credited for bringing families together on a Saturday night to watch the show. How does that feel?

Apollo It's a massive compliment to the show because I think parents are finding it hard to pull their kids off their tablets, games consoles and phones. To finally have a show that does that is huge. Electro There's nothing else on TV that brings everyone of all ages together.

What can you tell us about the new series?

Apollo It's bigger, better and badder! There are a lot of good contenders, which makes for some good battles between them and us. There are also a couple of twists and turns, and a few big falls. There are also a couple of

Hosts Bradley and Barney Walsh

Referees Lee Phillips, Mark Clattenburg and Sonia Mkoloma

Bionic, Athena, Apollo, Electro, Nitro and Comet

New game Atlasphears

new games to look forward to. There's a lot to be excited about.

Do you think the show will inspire young people to take up sport and exercise after watching what you guys can do?

Electro Absolutely. Every sport I have done has been inspired by watching other people do their thing, so it's great to be that person for young girls.

Apollo I watched Gladiators as a kid and I wonder how many of us were spurred on by the show to get into competitions. I know some of us were jumping around on our parents' sofas trying to do the games – which is what we have heard from families and kids now. It's amazing to go full circle from a kid on a couch watching the show to being the ones that the kids are watching and replicating.

Do you love all the games?

Electro I think every game has its place. It wouldn't feel right without one game in there. We're versatile as athletes, so it's nice to see people showcasing their athletic ability in different ways through the events.

Apollo Line 'em up. Whatever it is, I'll do it! The best game to play for me is The Edge – you're 25 metres up in the air, so there's a big fall.

The original series ran for almost eight years. Do you think the new Gladiators can equal that?

Apollo There's a huge appetite for more. Everyone's behind it. It's part of British entertainment and popular culture. As long as we keep raising the bar and as long as contenders keep raising the bar, I think we're here to stay.

Out in the COLD

The team is back to capture all our winter wildlife

NEW WILDLIFE
Winterwatch

Tue-Fri, 8pm (times vary), BBC2

Chris Packham, Michaela Strachan and Iolo Williams will be wrapping up for more live wildlife reporting as Winterwatch returns for a four-night series from its base at RSPB Arne in Dorset.

Set against a backdrop of stunning heathland, wetlands and woodlands, the new run will feature the usual blend of live broadcasts, behind-the-scenes features and natural-history films to showcase the behaviour of UK wildlife in the winter season.

Mating season:
Foxes

Here, the presenters share what they're most looking forward to...

FOXES

'My favourite animal to see at this time of year are foxes,' says Packham, 63. 'Foxes are very vocal as it's their mating season. There's nothing like being out in the woods at night and hearing the sharp bark of a fox. What I also like is that you can hear them in the hearts of our cities all over the UK, so they're really accessible.'

OTTERS

'I love the pre-recorded films with nature lovers and experts,' says Strachan, 58. 'This time, we meet Rupert Kirkwood, AKA The Lone Kayaker, who spends most of his time on the water, and he's seen minke whales and bluefin tuna. And there's retired doctor Christopher Wren, who has captured some magical otter moments at Gosforth Nature Reserve.'

WHITE-TAILED EAGLES

'I'm looking forward to seeing some of the birds – all kinds of waders and wildfowl – in the shallow bay at Arne,' says Williams, 62. 'And I'd love to get some nice views of the white-tailed eagles. We saw them on Springwatch, but it was a distant view. It would be lovely to be able to watch them hunting over the bay.'

GARDEN BIRDS

'I love seeing all the familiar garden

An otter

Keep your eyes peeled for tawny owls birds that are seeking out the feeders, particularly as we're encouraging everyone to take part in this year's Big Garden Birdwatch,' says Strachan. 'But my favourite part of the Watches are the live cameras. Every season they bring something to surprise us, and I always love that.'

TAWNY OWLS

'The great thing about RSPB Arne is its diverse range of habitats including broadleaf woodland, pine woodland, heathland and grassland,' says Packham. 'I'm looking forward to hearing the hoot of the tawny owls because they have begun courting and they will be laying their eggs around March.'

BUILDING DREAMS

Amanda Holden and Alan Carr head to Spain for their biggest renovation so far

NEW FACTUAL

Amanda & Alan's Spanish Job

Friday, 8pm, BBC1 (box set, BBC iPlayer)

Having already transformed two run-down properties into stylish modern homes in rural Italy, Amanda Holden and Alan Carr take on a new challenge in their latest series when they renovate an abandoned three-storey town house in the southern Spanish village of Moclin.

'We bought the house and decided to make it into a B&B,' explains Holden, 53. 'It was panic stations, because there was way more to do but we only had the same amount of time that we've always been given. There's a lot more bashing, a lot more tiling – a lot more of everything.'

The aim of the renovation is to breathe new life into a small community that's suffered from severe depopulation in recent years. But when Carr and Holden arrived to view the house, they got a very different impression.

SPANISH SURPRISE

'We went there during a big cycling event,' recalls Carr, 48. 'It was so funny – we're doing bits to camera, saying, "This village is dying," and it was like Black Friday on Oxford Street!'

Keen to draw inspiration from their surroundings, the pair visit the Alhambra Palace in nearby Granada – but despite their long-standing friendship and previous experience of working together, they couldn't always agree on a unified design style.

'I felt that we needed to make it look a bit Spanish as a nod to the environment,' says Carr. 'Whereas Amanda wants to make it look like Liberace's downstairs toilet! But because this house is big, we can go a bit more mad. I was like, "Well, you do the third floor, and I'll do the second."'

Holden and Carr worked with Sicily-based project manager Scott Thompson on both of their Italian renovations, and they were delighted when Thompson agreed to join them once again.

'Thank God for Scott, because it's really hard to find somebody who can do everything,' says Holden. 'He managed to find amazing local help, and he was full of brilliant suggestions.'

Michael McIntyre's Big Show

Saturday, 6.50pm, BBC1

Get set for hilarious cameos and heart-warming surprises as comic Michael McIntyre, 48, bounces back on to our screens this week with an eighth series of his Big Show. Here, he reveals what's in store...

Which celebrities can we expect to see this time? We have Michael Sheen, Judi Love and boxer Tony Bellew playing Send to All, and more amazing Unexpected Star celebs including singers Heather Small, Marti Pellow and Justin Hawkins. They're all sensational. And there are loads of celebrity cameos on Midnight Gameshow, including

Michael McIntyre is back for more pranks and surprises

The beautiful Alhambra Palace

The ground floor of the potential B&B

Jamie Oliver, Ollie Murs and Luke Littler. It's a jam-packed series.

What's new? We have a new item called Remember Me in which a celebrity sits in the Royal Box [of the Theatre Royal Drury Lane] and a person from their past appears on stage and asks them, 'Remember me?' They could be anyone from the midwife who birthed them to a holiday romance. I play it with Miranda Hart, Alan Carr and Holly Willoughby.

Are members of the public in for surprises, too? Yes. We took the Wheel on Wheels van to Birmingham to find someone watching the show and found an Indian takeaway restaurant with The Wheel on their TV. I hid behind the till!

We know things can become very emotional. What tear-jerking moments can we expect?

There is an unexpected Star called Peter who's been singing every day by his wife's bedside as she receives end-of-life care. He's so deserving of the special moment he had performing on our stage.

There's also an unmissable surprise for a huge darts fan, Gary, whose son died recently of cancer and he's dedicated himself to fundraising. He thought he was going to watch the World Matchplay in Blackpool but ended up playing against Luke Littler!

Law & Order

Tuesday, 9pm, USA

There are some big changes at the New York City Police Department as trigger-happy Detective Vincent Riley (Veep's Reid Scott) joins the homicide unit following the departure of Frank Cosgrove. As Vincent investigates his first case, the murder of a university president, he's faced with a range of suspects, including a lacrosse coach with a grudge and pro-Palestine protesters.

FINAL!

The Traitors

Wed & Thu, 9pm, & Fri, 8.30pm, BBC1

Host Claudia Winkleman (left) conducts the dramatic last moments as the show hurtles towards a thrilling finale, with plenty more skulduggery and some shock Round Table banishments. Last year's final showdown saw Traitor Harry strategically manipulate his way to victory, walking away with over £95,000. But who will get their hands on the prize pot this time around?

Grantchester

Wednesday, 9pm, ITV1

The vicarage gets a new resident as former Hollyoaks actor Rishi Nair joins the cast as Alphy Kottaram. The new vicar has a run-in with DI Geordie Keating, who mistakes Alphy for a burglar – and ends up getting punched in the face. 'It was my first day filming on set and I had to punch Robson Green,' laughs Nair. 'But it gives us the foundation of the relationship between Alphy and Geordie.'

Apple TV+ Prime Target

NEW Available: Wednesday 22 January
Genre: Thriller Season: 1 Episodes: 8
(first two eps from Wed 22 Jan, then weekly)

A brilliant young mathematician finds himself in deadly peril when he makes a breakthrough that threatens global security in a tense conspiracy thriller from Apple TV+.

Eight-part series Prime Target follows Edward Brooks (Leo Woodall), who's on the verge of succeeding where the finest minds in history have failed – by finding a pattern in prime numbers.

It's an achievement that could have huge consequences for the planet. The random nature of prime numbers means they are the basis for all digital encryption, protecting everything from the world's banks to the nuclear weapons of global superpowers. However, if someone unlocked a sequence behind prime numbers, then the codes for all these things could be at risk, placing a host of governments and powerful organisations on the brink of disaster...

'When I wrote the script, I imagined somebody who was a PhD mathematician at Cambridge cracking that code,' says the show's creator, Steve Thompson. 'If they did, their life would change for ever because so many governments and corporations would try to hunt them down.'

DANGEROUS DISCOVERY

Edward hasn't considered the dangers surrounding his idea until his tutor, Robert Mallinder (David Morrissey), destroys his thesis and he begins to suspect an unseen enemy is working to prevent his theory coming to light.

'Edward is focused on making this breakthrough at any cost and doesn't really care about himself or others,' explains Woodall, 28, whose credits include The White Lotus. 'He can be blunt and sometimes rude, but his main priority and drive is to find a pattern in prime numbers. Throughout the series, he realises people could get hurt. It becomes very dangerous.'

Woodall says he had a passion for maths at school and undertook additional classes before filming the project, but he quickly realised he wasn't going to understand everything his character does.

'Honestly, there is not a lot that Edward and I have in common, which is why I wanted to do the role,' he says. 'I knew it would be a challenge to get into the mind of someone who is not like me at all.'

Cracking the code

Leo Woodall plays a maths genius whose theories spark a global conspiracy specialising in Islamic antiquities – is one of the few people who believes Edward's assertion that darker forces are at play.

SECURITY THREAT

Meanwhile, Edward's determination brings him to the attention of NSA agent Taylah Sanders (Quintessa Swindell), who's been monitoring Europe's top mathematicians to see if any research might be a threat to digital security.

Sidse Babbett
Knudsen as Andrea

As she starts to piece together what's really going on, Taylah desperately wants to discover why Edward's research is so dangerous and uncover the conspiracy working to thwart him. 'Taylah is strong-willed and stands up for what she believes in,' explains Swindell, 27. 'What was most challenging about playing her was that she stayed mysterious to me. I never really knew what to expect, or what choices she would end up making.'

On the BRINK

How a 1980s maritime incident nearly sparked a nuclear war

Whiskey on the Rocks

NEW Available: Wednesday 22 January
Genre: Drama
Season: 1 Episodes: 6

It sounds stranger than fiction, but this darkly comic political satire about a diplomatic crisis that nearly sparked World War Three is actually based on a true story. Swedish-language series Whiskey on the Rocks recounts the terrifying brinkmanship that ensued when a Soviet submarine ran aground near a Swedish military base in October 1981.

The six-parter starts aboard the Whiskey-class Soviet sub U-137, which goes off course in the Baltic sea following a navigational error, and crosses into Swedish waters before hitting a submerged rock and becoming stranded.

When the sub is spotted by a fisherman, the news is relayed to the Swedish authorities. Meanwhile, the Soviets are desperate to recover the vessel, and the USA gets wind of what could be a defining moment in the Cold War.

With bullish US President Ronald Reagan (All Creatures Great and Small's Mark Noble) and vodka-soaked Soviet leader Leonid

Brezhnev (Kestutis Stasys Jakstas) both rattling their sabres, it's up to laidback sheep-farming Swedish PM Thorbjörn Fälldin (Rolf Lassgård) to keep the peace.

While this may be the first time many British viewers will have been made aware of the incident, original Wallander actor Lassgård says it looms large in Swedish memories.

'I was around 26 years old and I really remember it, like everyone who was in Sweden when it happened, and it was actually more terrifying than we knew at the time,' he says, adding that the real-life character he portrays in the drama was a rather unique politician.

'I don't think we will see another prime minister who, at the same time, was working as a farmer,' he says of Swedish premier Fälldin. 'This is a person who was really grounded.'

But while a hawkish general pushes him to take a hard line with the Soviets, it's Fälldin's measured approach that ultimately saves the day, instructing his forces to 'hold the border' until the Soviets withdraw.

'When the Soviet ships were coming closer to the Swedish border to take the sub away, Fälldin had only 10 minutes to decide what to do,' says Lassgård. 'He described it as the loneliest moment in his life.'

Agent Peter Sutherland goes AWOL as the spy thriller returns

The Night Agent

Available: Thursday 23 January
Genre: Drama Season: 2 Episodes: 10

Heroic FBI agent Peter Sutherland (The Big C's Gabriel Basso) accepted the offer to work in the field after saving the life of the US President at the end of Season 1 of Netflix's action-packed spy drama The Night Agent.

As the series returns, Peter is staking out a suspected mole in Thailand, alongside new mentor Alice (Pitch Perfect's Brittany Snow).

'Alice is Peter's point of contact in Thailand,' explains Snow. 'She's a very skilled agent, and used to a lifestyle of solitude.'

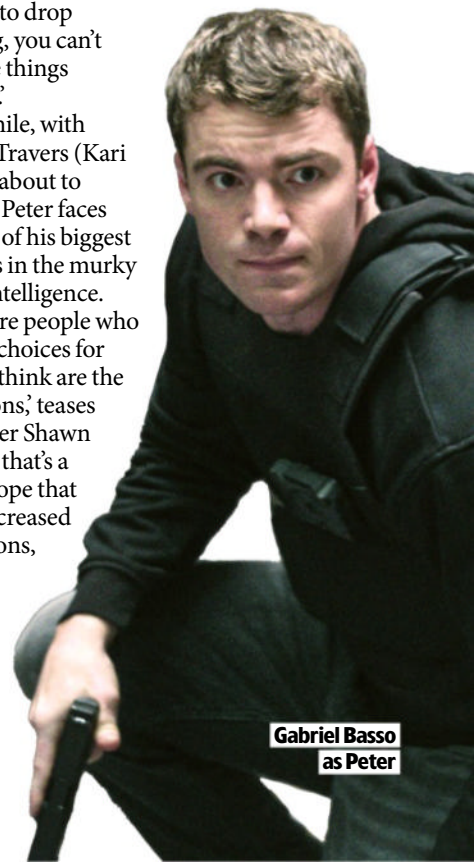

When their cover is blown, Peter goes AWOL but continues the investigation. Meanwhile, former tech CEO Rose Larkin (Luciane Buchanan), who grew close to Peter in the opening season as he saved her from assassins, receives a suspicious phone call asking about him. But having departed for California to resume her career, how advisable is it to get involved?

CONFLICTED

'Out of a desire to protect Rose, would Peter involve her in this life?' suggests Basso. 'To be that person who's able to drop everything, you can't really have things like family.'

Meanwhile, with President Travers (Kari Matchett) about to step aside, Peter faces losing one of his biggest supporters in the murky world of intelligence.

'There are people who make bad choices for what they think are the right reasons,' teases showrunner Shawn Ryan. 'But that's a slippery slope that leads to increased bad decisions, where suddenly you look up and you've lost your way and your soul.'

Michelle Yeoh joins a secret Starfleet division in a new spin-off adventure

Michelle Yeoh
as Georgiou

Paramount+ Star Trek: Section 31

NEW Available: Friday 24 January
Genre: Sci-fi

The ever-expanding Star Trek universe boldly ventures into new territory with a spin-off film that sees Oscar-winner Michelle Yeoh reprise her role of the infamous and ruthless Emperor Philippa Georgiou.

After then-Captain Georgiou's untimely death in Season 1 of Star Trek: Discovery, a gleefully wicked mirror universe version of the character appeared. She had ruled the Terran Empire before crossing over into the Prime universe.

Now, as the franchise's first-ever TV film beams onto Paramount+, we find Georgiou in the 'lost era' of the early 24th century, where she's living under a new alias and running a nightclub, The Baraam, in space outside the United Federation of Planets.

But when Alok Sahar (Omari Hardwick), the leader of Starfleet's secret division known as Section 31, seeks her out for a covert mission, will Georgiou want a piece of the action?

'Georgiou is one of the most complex, fun, out-of-this-world characters that I've ever played,' says Everything Everywhere All at Once star Yeoh, 62. 'Section 31 is in the Star Trek universe, but this is different. It's like Mission: Impossible meets Guardians of the Galaxy.'

The film introduces a ragtag Section 31 squad, including shapeshifting scientist Quasi (Sam Richardson), Deltan operative Melle (Humberly González) and mood-swinging Fuzz (Sven Ruygrok). Overseeing the operatives is the future captain of the USS Enterprise-C, Rachel Garrett (Kacey Rohl), while warrior Zeph (Robert Kazinsky) is dangerously loyal to Sahar.

'This team is not like anything you've seen before on the show. They're mischievous and anarchists,' says ex-

EastEnders star Kazinsky, 41.

'Zeph is paraplegic. He did it to himself by trying to augment himself and the suit is his wheelchair. He's dependent on it, but the suit gives him extra power and strength.'

Kazinsky hopes this adventure will make fans think differently about the clandestine division, which has a controversial reputation.

'The truth is the Federation can only exist if a Section 31 exists,' he says. 'But we take it from being a nefarious organisation to humanising it.'

Georgiou is drawn back into conflict

How thousands of Spanish babies were secretly taken from their parents

NEW FACTUAL

Long Lost Family
Special: The Spanish
Baby Scandal

Tuesday, 9pm, ITV1

In 2011, Spain was rocked by a headline-making news story alleging that, over several decades, thousands of newborn babies might have been taken from their parents and illegally placed with other families.

According to reports, the human trafficking had begun in the late 1930s under the regime of right-wing dictator General Franco, when babies were apparently removed by medics and the Church for financial gain, or because the parents – including single mothers, and those opposed to General Franco – were deemed 'unsuitable'.

The children were then adopted or sold, and, in some cases, their birth relatives were falsely told they had died.

The horrifying practice is thought to have continued into the 1990s, and this week, in a special edition of

The Lost Music of Auschwitz

Monday, 9pm, Sky Arts

It's 80 years since the Allies liberated the Nazi death camp Auschwitz. Around 1.1 million people perished there, yet it was also home to several orchestras formed of prisoners. In this one-off, British conductor Leo Geyer performs the music he has painstakingly researched as it would have sounded at Auschwitz.

Ruth Appleby with Davina McCall

ITV1's Long Lost Family, presenters Davina McCall and Nicky Campbell meet mothers and children who believe they were part of the so-called 'Stolen Babies Scandal'.

INGRAINED ISSUE

'This went on for years and became something beyond its original wicked purposes,' says Campbell, 63. 'It's unbelievable and terrible, and to see how organised it was is shocking.'

The special follows British teaching assistant Ruth Appleby, who lives in Yorkshire but was residing in La Coruña in northern Spain when she had her first baby, Rebecca, in 1992. Ruth was told her newborn daughter had sadly passed away, but after the scandal came to light almost 20 years later, she realised information she had previously been given did not add up. Had Rebecca been stolen?

Meanwhile, Spain-born Maria Elena and her mother Ana, who now live in London, reveal their fears that Ana's twin son and daughter were taken from the Madrid hospital where they were born in 1958.

In the programme, Campbell meets Professor Soledad Luque, who is pushing for new legislation to help solve stolen-baby cases. However, it remains difficult for many families to obtain proof about what really happened because official documents are frequently missing, incorrect or have even been falsified.

Neither Ruth nor Ana have yet learnt the truth about their children and whether they are still alive, as DNA matches have so far not proved fruitful.

'It's hard, because some children don't know their parents aren't their biological parents,' explains Campbell. 'So they don't put their DNA on websites because they're not looking for anyone – and they don't know anyone is looking for them.'

Can a new treatment cure Ollie of his aversion to balloons?

NEW FACTUAL

The Fear Clinic: Face Your Phobia

Tuesday, 8pm, C4

In the UK alone, around 10 million people suffer with a phobia – whether that's common types like claustrophobia or arachnophobia, or more unusual conditions such as emetophobia (a fear of vomiting) and coulrophobia (a fear of clowns).

But help is at hand in C4's new series The Fear Clinic: Face Your Phobia, which follows 20 fearful Brits as they put faith in a revolutionary centre in Amsterdam that specialises in a pioneering treatment based on the latest neuroscience – and the results are pretty staggering.

Ollie has a rare phobia of balloons, known as globophobia, which has dominated his life since an awkward childhood party.

'It sounds ridiculous to be terrified of an object that wouldn't cross most people's minds,' says Ollie. 'But my phobia massively affected my childhood and teenage years and I still avoid a lot of social situations.'

'Now, I have two young children and everywhere we go there's a balloon somewhere, meaning I'm constantly at a heightened level of anxiety. But I can't keep making excuses.'

Treatment at the centre works on the basis that, as with muscle memory, we also have emotional memory, which tells our bodies how to feel and react to different situations. Each patient is encouraged to face their worst-case scenario, then change their emotional memory.

For Ollie, that means entering a room full of multicoloured balloons, which causes an extreme emotional response. After leaving the room, he's then given a beta blocker that will hopefully alter the way that his emotional memory is saved in his brain as he sleeps overnight.

Also hoping to face their fears in this week's first episode are Nick, who's terrified of mice, and Nina, who has an extreme phobia of being a passenger in a vehicle. Later in the series, phobias tackled include open water, frogs, birds and sheep.

But while Nina's fear is so deep that she can't continue treatment, Ollie is miraculously cured after just 48 hours.

'It's been the most intense few days of my entire life, but I'm really happy it's worked,' he says. 'It's the end of one life and the start of another.'

PREMIERE
WEEK

ACTION THRILLER

Friday, 11.55am & 8pm,
Sky Premiere

Back in the late 1980s/early 90s, action thrillers coming from Hong Kong were the best being made anywhere in the world. And of those filmmakers, John Woo was king. Sadly, his transition to Hollywood never quite hit the heights of his homegrown movies, and his career seemed to have gone with a whimper.

But this remake of his iconic 1989 film seems to dispel that. A full-blown balletic gunplay tour-de-force, it's a riot of ridiculous set pieces. And there's enough twists and turns from the original to make this a stand-out in itself, foremost being the main character.

The first version saw the cool, charming Chow Yun-Fat as the assassin with a strict moral code, now it's the lithe, slick Nathalie Emmanuel, with her adversary being laconic but stand-up cop Omar Sy. Taking place in Paris, they cross paths before uniting in an almighty showdown in an abandoned church that highlights Woo's masterful touch when it comes to gloriously violent, brilliantly choreographed action scenes. It's still as daft as the first, but this is still a welcome blast from the past redone with panache. 2024, 15, 126MIN

Alien: Romulus

On now, on demand, Disney+

A commendable reboot to the increasingly complex Alien franchise, this strips back most that has gone before to attempt a re-creation of the original movie's 'haunted house in space' vibe. Set 20 years after the original (and 30 before the sequel Aliens), it sees a rowdy group of young adults (including Isabela Merced, Spike Fearn and Archie Renaux) convince Cailee Spaeny and her android companion David Jonsson to go on an 'in-and-out' salvage mission. But we all know what they're going to find on the abandoned space station they're heading to... Plenty of nods to Alien plant this very much in that world, while the tension is cranked up to fine effect by director Fede Alvarez. The finale becomes a little convoluted, but there is still plenty to enjoy here. From 15 Jan. 2024, 15, 119MIN

But when she meets the amiable, thoughtful Ethan (Thomas Mann), she discovers someone to bond with – but is this blurred relationship love or a just another crutch?

An intelligent, sometimes funny, sometimes brutal study of bulimia, this follows Riley over a few years as she attempts to navigate her life. The directorial debut of actor Brittany Snow (who also co-wrote), the film nails a character who's charming, relatable, selfish, exasperating and heartbreaking all rolled into one. In short, Riley feels like a real human being going through something mentally crippling. Eaton is a revelation, brilliantly breathing life into someone who, regardless of their actions, we are rooting for till the very end. 2023, 15, 108MIN

Up in the desolate Highlands in Scotland, three adult brothers (Daniel Portman, Brian Vernel and Calum Ross) shoot their manipulative, abusive father (Paul Higgins), burying his body deep in the forest. But when they are forced to go back there, he's gone... An effective thriller about the effects of familial mistreatment, this small-budget movie ekes all the suspense it can from the increasingly paranoid siblings. Directed by first-timer Rodger Griffiths, it's a very decent, if dour, stab at the genre, aided by strong performances from the entire cast. 2023, 15, 94MIN

A little Nicolas Cage goes a terrifyingly long way in Osgood Perkins' serial killer/occult delving creepfest. Maika Monroe stars as an introverted FBI newbie whose near-psychic intuition could be the key to ending a barbaric string of whole-family slaughters in 1990s Oregon. Cage is the sing-song culprit, Longlegs, who unnerves from the get-go by having a little girl face a wintry encounter with him. The horrors are largely kept off-screen for much of this classy movie's duration, but it succeeds as a scary, deeply disconcerting experience. 2023, 15, 101MIN

Champions League

Liverpool are looking unstoppable as the tournament returns

THE MAIN EVENT

LIVE FOOTBALL

Tuesday & Wednesday, Prime Video & TNT Sports

Following the Christmas break, the Champions League resumes on Tuesday and Wednesday, with just two match weeks remaining in the new-look league phase of the tournament.

The top eight sides qualify automatically for the last 16, to be played in March, with teams finishing ninth to 24th taking part in a two-legged play-off to join them in the next stage.

Here, we look at the British clubs' chances of progressing...

LIVERPOOL

Atop the table with six wins from six games, things couldn't be going any better for the six-time European champions, and Liverpool will be assured of a top-eight finish if they get a point at home to Lille on Tuesday (kick-off 8pm, Prime Video) before wrapping up the league phase with a trip to PSV Eindhoven. Mohamed Salah scored his 46th goal in the competition against Girona last time out, moving him to joint 12th in the list of all-time Champions League goalscorers.

ASTON VILLA

After four wins in six, an impressive Villa are sitting fifth in the table and have all but clinched a place in the last 16. Unai Emery's team travel to Monaco on Tuesday (kick-off 5.45pm, TNT Sports 1) before wrapping up their league-phase campaign at Villa Park against Celtic. Jhon Durán is Villa's top scorer in the campaign, with three goals, and netted alongside John McGinn and Ross Barkley in the 3-2 victory at RB Leipzig in December.

MANCHESTER CITY

Remarkably, City are languishing in 22nd place in the table, and Pep Guardiola's out-of-sorts side face a difficult trip to Paris Saint-Germain on Wednesday (kick-off 8pm, TNT Sports 1) before hosting Club Brugge a week later. Goalkeeper Ederson has conceded nine goals in the last three Champions League games, and the play-offs are City's most realistic hope. 'We have two games, we need one point maybe [to make the play-offs],' says Guardiola.

ARSENAL

A brace from Bukayo Saka helped Arsenal beat Monaco to move up to third in the table, but the Gunners will be without the England international for their final two games after he was injured in December. Mikel Arteta's men, who host Dinamo Zagreb on Wednesday (kick-off 8pm, TNT Sports 2) before visiting Girona in their final match, have based their campaign around a solid defence that's conceded just twice and featured a Champions League debut for teenage left-back Myles Lewis-Skelly.

Wednesday, play starts 1.30pm, TNT Sports 1

Expect to be entertained as England Test coach Brendon McCullum takes charge of the men's white-ball team for the first time, after being appointed to the role in September. His first fixture sees England take on India at Eden Gardens, Kolkata, in the first of five T20 matches, followed by a three-match ODI series. Jos Buttler captains the T20 squad, which includes fast bowler Mark Wood, who has recovered from an elbow injury, and paceman Saqib Mahmood, who was player of the series in the T20 series win over the West Indies in November.

Europa League

Thursday, TNT Sports

Just a point separates Manchester United and Rangers in the Europa League table as the sides face off at Old Trafford (k-o 8pm, TNT Sports 1). United are undefeated in six games, while Rangers come into the match on the back of a 1-1 draw with Tottenham Hotspur that saw Hamza Igamane score his fourth Europa League goal. Spurs, meanwhile, who are also well-placed for automatic qualification to the last 16, travel to German outfit Hoffenheim (k-o 5.45pm, TNT Sports 2).

World Rally Championship

Thursday & Friday, TNT Sports 3 & TNT Sports 4

The World Rally Championship begins its biggest season since 2019 with 14 rounds scheduled for 2025, including three new rallies in the Canary Islands, Paraguay and Saudi Arabia. Monte Carlo is the venue for this week's season opener and begins with three stages in the darkness on Thursday night. Last year, Welsh driver Elfyn Evans, racing for Toyota, finished third in the event behind Hyundai's Belgian driver Thierry Neuville, who went on to win the world title by 32 points from Evans.

KIDS WATCHLIST

Great shows for young viewers (from tots to teens) on linear TV and streaming

NEW

Apple TV+ Eva the Owlet

Available from Friday, Apple TV+

The lovable little owl returns in new stories aimed towards preschoolers, with more big adventures to match her even bigger personality.

Based on the bestselling Owl Diaries books by Rebecca Elliott, the series opens with the owl city of Treetopington celebrating a special holiday, and Eva helping a lost oriole bird get back to his family – learning the true meaning of community along the way.

With its charming characters, and life lessons taught in a gentle and memorable way, this is the perfect thing to watch with your little ones.

Milkshake!

The Smurfs

Sat & Sun, 8.35am, Milkshake! on Five

Tune into new animated adventures featuring the little blue creatures, who live in their mushroom village led by Papa Smurf. Look out for two new characters: Wild Smurf, with his leafy hat, and Leaf, a nature fairy who is destined to replace Mother Nature – while evil wizard Gargamel is still trying to catch the Smurfs for his own gains. New stories include the trouble that takes place when Painter Smurf uses one of Handy's new inventions to help him paint portraits of his friends.

More great shows to watch this week...

Wonderblocks

Weekdays, 8.20am, CBeebies

From the creatures of Numberblocks, Alphablocks and Colourblocks comes this series all about problem solving. Together with their friends Go and Stop, the blocks help turn little learners into problem-solving whizzes.

My Life: The Fastest Boy in the World

Thursday, 6pm, CBBC

NEW

Following Alfie, a 10-year-old motorbike racing champion with ADHD and autism, as he sets out to break a new land speed world record.

Star Wars: Skeleton Crew

Zero Day

FIRST LOOK

Robert De Niro headlines a star-studded conspiracy thriller

Here's a sneak peek at Robert De Niro as he takes centre stage in dark political drama Zero Day.

The six-parter, airing on Netflix from 20 February, sees the Hollywood legend play popular former US President George Mullen. A cyberattack results in thousands of deaths, and George heads up the commission to locate those responsible before they strike again.

Angela Bassett as President Mitchell

Tech giants, Wall Street bankers and government officials all have their own agendas, however, and George has to establish whether the threat comes from outside or internal forces. But during his investigation, George must also address his own long-buried secrets... Angela Bassett co-stars as shrewd current President Evelyn Mitchell, while Lizzy Caplan is George's politician daughter Alexandra, and Jesse Plemons

Can the powers that be prevent another tragedy?

is his one-time aide Roger Carlson. Joan Allen plays George's ambitious wife Sheila, Connie Britton is his ex-chief of staff Valerie Whitesell, Matthew Modine appears as Speaker of the House Richard Dreyer, and Dan Stevens is controversial TV host Evan Green.

'That's the spine of my character in the show – don't dodge anything, don't play games,' says De Niro. 'Be honest, so that the public knows what's going on.'

WHAT'S NEXT FOR...

Rose Ayling-Ellis

The actor will guest-star alongside Ncuti Gatwa later this year in an episode of BBC1's sci-fi saga Doctor Who, which showrunner Russell T. Davies describes as 'one of the most frightening we've ever made.'

Romesh Ranganathan

Sky Max's four-part travelogue Can't Knock the Hustle will see the comedian journey across India, the USA, South Korea and Canada to assess how different countries tackle the work-life balance.

Joe Swash & Stacey Solomon

In BBC1's reality show Stacey & Joe, the couple open up about their family life as they juggle work, holidays and exam results, and even build a fishing lake.

Coming Back

For a second run of C4's Renovation Rescue, Vogue Williams and Luke Mabbott take over as hosts and help more property owners unleash their DIY talents to create the homes of their dreams after being let down by builders.
